AAP, Rider Swap, and Express Pass

AAP Pass

- AAP stands for Access Assistance Pass.
- It entitles a person holding the pass and several others in their party to reserve a return time equal to the current wait time on a ride. If the wait time is under thirty minutes they can ride immediately.
- Once they return they wait in a significantly reduced line.
- It is good because you are not in line but bad because you miss the pre-show.
- You register for this with Guest Services

Rider Swap

- This ensure that everyone in a party can ride a given ride even if a member of their group cannot
- Simply ask a cast member for a rider swap and they will instruct you on how that attraction is handling it.
- The entire party waits in line then the adult and which ever kids can ride do so. At the end, the adult with whatever kids can ride go while the first adult can exit the attraction.

Express Pass

- $80 for single Ride
 - You get to skip the line at each attraction once
- $110 for Multi Ride
 - You can skip the line an unlimited number of times

Hotels

Universal Hotels

- Universal has seven hotels
- The highest tier hotels give you express pass as part of your stay - Potentially a huge savings

Other Options

- Orlando has tons of hotel options
 - Just because Disney does not “approve” them does not mean they are not awesome.
 - You can save tons of money by staying “outside the bubble”
- You can also rent entire homes through Airbnb, VRBO and numerous other sites. These often come with great amenities at an amazing price.

The Conference Hotel

- The Hilton Orlando Disney Springs
- A Disney Good Neighbor Hotel - Transportation to the parks and early entry at Disney (not Universal)
- Very close to Disney Springs with tons to do, see, eat, and buy.
- Of course this would not be a NOAH trip without a great pool
